Hipsway memorably attained the Top 20 of both the UK and US singles charts. Formed in 1984 by Jazzateers vocalist Grahame Skinner, Altered Images' Johnny McElhone and Harry Travers. Skinner later formed a band with members of Love & Money; Johnny went on to found Texas. This recording from January 1984 is the original demo of their debut single and features Love & Money front man James Grant on lead guitar, before they discovered Pim.

Microdisney were a classic Peel band. Formed in the early 80s in Ireland, they soon moved to the UK. A mix of soft instrumentation with biting lyrics, they never achieved their full potential.

Now this is the one time on the chart that I'm going to cheat a little. Instead of offering up the other tracks from the single (which are basically just remixes)*, I'm posting the track with Toni Halliday that I mentioned a few paras back.

Her father was a three-time world champion calf roper. In her teens she competed in rodeos as a barrel racer. In 1974 she sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" at the National Finals Rodeo and that performance led to her signing a record deal with Mercury.

In the Citadel DLC for the game, Shepard and Tali watch Fleet and Flotilla; the romantic theme for the movie is the same tune. From the same DLC, Liara plays "Vigil" from Mass Effect on the piano when she visits Shepard's apartment.

Monty Python's Flying Circus uses John Phillip Sousa's "Liberty Bell" march as theme music, and such was their influence they've effectively made it their own. The original, like most Sousa marches, goes into a different melody which is nowhere near as well-known. The original also has no razzberries.

I like to think that most of the bands/singers featured on this blog are reasonably well known, as that saves me giving a detailed explanation of who they are (or were, in the event there's been a break-up). As for today's lot - well I'm sure the name at least might be familiar to many UK (and Japanese) readers, but less so to my friends across on the other side of the Atlantic. So here's a little bio of Uruetsi Yatsura.

Randy Newman was inducted into the Songwriters Hall of Fame in 2002. In 2007, Newman was inducted as a Disney Legend.

The Transformers films seem to have this strange obsession with Linkin Park's music and managed to utilize this with What I've Done playing in the credits of the first filmnote. Then it got subverted with New Divide being recorded specifically for Revenge of the Fallen, and was mixed into the film's actual score at various points. Dark of The Moon continued the tradition by having the song Iridescent as its theme, though slightly re-recorded to better fit with the film's grim mood.

No, this isn't a cover of the George Thoroughgood classic. Rather, it's a cover of Brian Pillman's old theme, Blondes Have More Fun, albeit with different lyrics.

One of the inmates, Merle Haggard, became inspired to join the prison's country music band, then went on to become a country music superstar. Cash was called the "Undertaker" because he always dressed in black. I can verify that, since he would bring his family to the McDonalds closest to the Grand Ole Opry, where I worked as a teenager. I never saw him wear any other color.

Clare Grogan went solo and became an actress, along the way marrying band-member and producer Steve Lironi; Johnny McElhone went on to first form Hipsway and then Texas. This is an outtake version of the song.

Just four years later, the band and record label tried a similar trick with the release of Mixed Up, this time an 11-track compilation comprising different mixes of 10 old singles and one brand new song. Released towards the end of November 1990, it was a great bit of marketing as it was sure to find its way onto many a Xmas list.

Shania Twain OC (born Eillean Regina Edwards, August 28, 1965) is a Canadian singer and songwriter in the country and pop music genres. Her third album Come on Over is the best-selling album of all time by a female musician, and the best-selling album in the history of country music. She is the only female musician to have three albums certified Diamond by the Recording Industry Association of America, and is also the second best selling artist in Canada, behind Céline Dion, with three of her studio albums being certified double diamond by the Canadian Recording Industry Association. Twain has achieved both critical and financial success, having received five Grammy awards, 27 BMI Songwriter awards, and sold over 65 million albums worldwide to date including 48 million in the US alone.

There's not a single duff track on it, and the whole thing ticks over in just 36 minutes. I love it so much that I've got a vinyl copy, a CD copy and a remastered CD copy that came with extra tracks.

An unsigned band featuring Park Lane studio manager Fiona Palmer together with John Palmer who played with Deacon Blue, amongst others. Local TV newscasts have used real songs, often instrumentals, on occasion. Perhaps the most famous use would be Gonna Fly Now being the theme to the ground-breaking CityPulse in Toronto from 1977 into the 2000s (with various rearrangements and new themes with the same melody being used until then).

Deutschland 83 used two different songs in different markets. The original German broadcast used "Blue Monday" by New Order, while the US and UK broadcasts used a German song of the era, "Major Tom (Coming Home)" by Peter Schilling.

The Jazzateers were formed by guitarist Ian Burgoyne and bassist Keith Band. Paul Quinn became their singer, and was then replaced by Grahame 'Skin' Skinner who later left to form Hipsway. Quinn rejoined as they became Bourgoie Bourgie, who were filmed for 'The Switch' TV show performing this track. This recording is from their 1983 Routh Trade album, with Skinner on lead vocals.

To be fair, this was a period in my life when I wasn't listening to much music at all. I was going through a bit of an upheaval trying to sort myself out in some ways that involved a bit of a change in lifestyle including looking to get married and settle down. The Style Council didn't seem important anymore. And judging from what I was able to pick up from the media I wasn't missing much as Wanted received a bit of a pasting. Paul Weller had come in for bit of stick and times over the previous ten years but the extent to which this was now prolonged and indeed the venom involved was unprecedented.

John Denver (December 31, 1943 - October 12, 1997), born Henry John Deutschendorf, Jr, was an American Country Music/folk singer-songwriter and folk rock musician. One of the most popular artists of the 1970s, he recorded and released some 300 songs, about half composed by himself. He was named Poet Laureate of Colorado in 1977. Songs such as "Leaving on a Jet Plane" (1967), "Take Me Home, Country Roads" (1971), "Rocky Mountain High" (1973), "Thank God I'm a Country Boy" (1974), "Annie's Song" (1974), "Sunshine on My Shoulders" (1974), and "Calypso" (1975) are popular worldwide. Denver has been referred to as "The Poet for the Planet", "Mother Nature's Son" (based on The Beatles song he covered) and "A Song's Best Friend".

Many Rhythm Games live on this trope. Ranging from Konami's Bemani entries to Sega's maimai to Andamiro's Pump It Up to Namco's Taiko no Tatsujin to even Nintendo's Donkey Konga. Pop a coin in and/or press start and chances are there are at least a few songs in the game lifted from anime or J-pop (or in Andamiro's case, K-pop). Pop'n Music, maimai and Taiko no Tatsujin in particular are excellent examples of the trope, with a rich repertoire of Anime themes and J-pop music in their list.

It didn't bother the higher echelons of the charts, hitting #41. And that, for many people, was expected to be the end of The Style Council.

Singer Paul Quinn also recorded with Vince Clarke and Edwyn Collins and was a regular fixture of Postcard Records. Guitarist Mick Slaven has also played with Del Amitri and Ricky Ross. Park Lane in-house producer Kenny 'Mac' McDonald was also their drummer. This is the demo version of the single later produced by Lightning Seeds' Ian Broudie, which narrowly missed the Top 40, beginning their dissolution.

But in all honesty, I was really too young at 13 to get a grip on what was happening in 1976 and 1977. And besides, I was still more interested in playing football in those years than I was in listening to music. You can also factor in that it wasn't until 1978 when I got a paper-round that I was able to have enough money to properly indulge in buying records rather than home-taping them straight from the radio onto my portable cassette player. And I had no guilt that all the inner-sleeves of LPs at that time came with the warning 'Home Taping Is Killing Music', complete with its logo of a skull and crossbones superimposed over a cassette tape.

My all-time favourite single by The Clash was 'Rock The Casbah' because I was convinced they were singing "Sharleen don't like it". Later, I used to book into hotels as Janie Jones until someone rumbled me.

Tomorrow's World had a number of memorable original themes over the years, but for a while around the millennium it used "In Pursuit of Happiness" by The Divine Comedy. Just the instrumental bit though, thereby avoiding the lyrics about millions dying in plague and murder.

The underground nature of hip hop began to go mainstream in the early 80s and Bambaataa was one of the first to land a recording deal but having experienced little success outwith hip-hop/dance fans he began to look for ways to have his music crossover into other genres. And thus Timezone was formed in 1983 with the idea that Bambaataa would work with different musicians on a one-off basis.

She began to sing at a young age, performing in school shows as early as preschool. She began to take piano lessons after a friend gifted her a piano.

Absolutely Fabulous uses "This Wheel's on Fire". Julie Driscoll's recording of the song in the 60's was a hit in the UK, and she re-recorded the song for the show.

The Engagement Sheet Music

He was prolific, making about fifty recordings as a leader during his recording career, and appeared as a sideman on many other albums, notably with trumpeter Miles Davis and pianist Thelonious Monk. As his career progressed, Coltrane's music took on an increasingly spiritual dimension. His second wife was pianist Alice Coltrane, and their son Ravi Coltrane is also a saxophonist.

Led by Ricky Ross from Dundee, Deacon Blue went on to have great success, regularly topping the UK album charts. They split for a while in the 1990's, but are now back together again, as well as Ricky recording and performing with Lorraine McIntosh as McIntosh Ross. This track is a demo of a song that only ever appeared as an extra track on the 1987, first 12" version of the much re-issued 'Dignity', their debut single release.

Metallica features a dozen songs for the player to choose from, including "Creeping Death", "One", "Master of Puppets", "Battery", "For Whom the Bell Tolls", and "Fade To Black". An Expansion Pack update added "Ride the Lightning" and "Blackened".

I've pondered occasionally what might have happened if Factory had insisted on releasing it as a single and that somehow it managed to chart. Would it have meant Hooky would permanently have been handed vocal duties? If so, would the band have gone onto enjoy the subsequent successes or would they have messily imploded all too quickly? Rhetorical questions of course, but ones for a good drunken debate of an evening.

I kind of get the feeling that this was a tape in which every NME staffer got to choose one song or act that they were listening to at the time and as a result it is more disjointed than most. But it does have about half a dozen that have stood up to the test of passing time.

Thankfully, the album did sell in reasonable quantities, but not enough to arrest Factory's eventual decline into receivership/administration. It did however lead to New Order being asked to take the sound of Technique into the football world when they penned the England Squad's 1990 World Cup Anthem, World In Motion, which finally gave the band the #1 hit they had been chasing for a few years.

For all your dumb coyness, I don't think you need to be told. Just don't go anywhere, don't call anyone.

In May 1988, a new single was released, followed by the fourth studio LP the following month. I will be honest and say that up until a couple of years back, I had never heard Life At A Top People's Health Farm as I've never been tempted to own a copy of the parent album, Confessions Of A Pop Group. The reviews were savage and this time I decided, having been bitten once by the contents of The Cost Of Loving, it was a case of twice shy.

I've since learned that The Cost was a piece of music composed as the theme tune to a film entitled Business As Usual that had been released in 1987. I've no recollection of the film despite it being described as an anti-Thatcher film with high-profile stars in John Thaw, Glenda Jackson and Cathy Tyson.

Sin City: "Cells" by The Servant predates the film and was not specifically made for it. Robert Rodriguez usually composes his own soundtracks, but he felt the song so evoked a Film Noir atmosphere that he used it for the trailer. Ironically, while it's the most well-known song from the film, it's technically not even the main theme.

The Fox run of Don't Forget the Lyrics used The Doobie Brothers' "China Grove". Yes, it did appear within the game itself on one occasion.

Fabrics, yarn, hobby and accessories - Stoff & Stil

It's clearly an anti-war song, or more precisely, an anti-Army/military service song urging those 18-25 year olds who were, thanks to a new bill passing through the US Congress, facing a requirement to register themselves under a system where circumstances could lead to them having to carry out service in 'defence' of their country. The sentiments were very noble given it was only a decade after Vietnam where, as a later hit song would remind us, the average age of a casualty had been 19.

Now I daren't think that all of the songs are autobiographical – if they are, his heart must be in billions of pieces by now. The most amazing thing is that the accompanying tunes never fall into the category of maudlin or dirge-like.

It reached #12 in the singles chart, which was just one place below that of London Calling. Again, an appearance on Top of the Pops (or even allowing the promo video to be aired) might have seen it reach the Top 10.

Pinball Arcade uses "Pinball Wizard" from The Who when selecting a table. Earlier versions of the game used an instrumental, while more recent versions use the full song.

Development began in 1997, during the English localization of Final Fantasy VII. The game builds on the visual changes brought to the series by Final Fantasy VII, including use 3D graphics and pre-rendered backgrounds, while also departing from many Final Fantasy traditions. It is the first Final Fantasy to use realistically proportioned characters consistently, feature a vocal piece as its theme music, forego the use of magic points for spellcasting, and deviate from the series' traditional means of increasing a character's power.

The Bluebells famously scored a number one hit with this song, originally composed by Bobby Bluebell and Siobhan Fahey. Interestingly, here's the original demo, mixed by Rab Andrew in April 1983. The final master added Valentino's violin, who successfully sued for a songwriting credit after it got used for a TV advert. The band also featured the McCluskey Brothers and Aztec Camera and Smiths guitarist Craig Gannon. They played a reunion gig supporting Edwyn Collins in Glasgow in 2009.

While their uncompromising style may have ruled out any greater commercial success, their standing as a live act secured a support slot on a U2 tour. But Cathal refused to be on best behaviour for the big occasion, infamously causing a near riot on the Italian leg with some on-stage Catholic baiting.

After showcasing her demos to multiple producers a bidding war broke out. Columbia Records eventually won after they offered her a $26,000 white baby grand piano.

Final Fantasy VIII (ファイナルファンタジーVIII Fainaru Fantajī Eito) is a role-playing video game developed and published by Square for the PlayStation console. Released in 1999, it is the eighth main installment in the Final Fantasy series. Set on an unnamed fantasy world with science fiction elements, the game follows a group of young mercenaries, led by Squall Leonhart, as they are drawn into a conflict sparked by the sorceress Edea. After defeating Edea, the protagonists learn that she was under the control of Ultimecia, a sorceress from the future who wishes to compress time. During the quest to defeat Ultimecia, Squall struggles with his role as leader and develops a romance with one of his comrades, Rinoa Heartilly.

Love & Money released four albums over a seven-year period. Singer James Grant continues as a solo artist. Bobby Paterson, who was involved in early Primal Scream and later formed 'Poems' with Bobby Bluebell, died in 2006. Drummer Stuart Kerr was later to join Texas. Paul McGeechan remained ensconced in Park Lane Studio, running it through to 2009. This is the 7@ mix of their 1986 debut single.

With the success of Carmina Burana, Orff disowned all of his previous works except for Catulli Carmina and the Entrata (an orchestration of "The Bells" by William Byrd (1539–1623)), which were rewritten until acceptable by Orff. As an historical aside, Carmina Burana is probably the most famous piece of music composed and premiered in Nazi Germany. Carmina Burana was in fact so popular that Orff received a commission in Frankfurt to compose incidental music for A Midsummer Night's Dream, which was supposed to replace the banned music by Mendelssohn. After the war, he claimed not to be satisfied with the music and reworked it into the final version that was first performed in 1964.

Kiddie Rides tend to do this a lot. Generic horses usually either play the Bonanza theme or William Tell Overture.

An inevitable trope for Licensed Games. Usually the game will at least use the show's theme song (or in the case of a movie, the Award-Bait Song) for the opening theme. If it's based on a movie, well, expect the other songs and scores from the movie to be used in the game as well.

It was back in 1994 that Fergus Lawrie, Graham Kemp, Ian Graham and Elaine Graham decided to form a band. They named it after a hugely popular Japanese comic book – one that has been given its own TV series and video game.

Jackass: The jangly polka is "Corona" by The '80s alternative punk trio Minutemen. An interesting choice, considering that it's a recording that's as old as most of the show's audience.

The Best Harmonies and Harmonizers of All Time

Two Guys, a Girl and a Pizza Place originally used the song "Blister in the Sun" by Violent Femmes. It switched to an original song in season 3 at the same time the show's name was changed and the pizza place was dropped.

The fact that Che Records had gone under led to the band disappearing from view for the best part of two years, and it was very late on in 1999 before an EP came out on the Beggars Banquet label, and then in 2000, it was announced the band was setting up its own label in the shape of Oni Records. Two singles and one LP was all that emerged over the next 18 months before they called it a day.

Where the rock side of things was where most expected the band to go, they brought out a single that delighted those who had fallen for the charms of their reggae covers. It didn't however, find favour with a few critics who were looking for any reason to turn on the band (after all, the whole ethos of music journalism has always been to tear down those you spent time building up).

Fire on the Mountain

Monster Prom: The game's OST is composed of a 2021 album from the band Messer Chups, The Incredible Crocotiger. The ending theme is a 2021 song by Mike Kroll, "Fifteen Minutes".

I was there at the recording of 'Bankrobber'. Me and my mate Pete Garner were walking down Granby Road in the middle of Manchester one day and we could hear these drums coming through the walls. Pete was a proper Clash fan and he was convinced it was them. Then Topper Headon walks out onto the street right in front of us!

Slide were a 4-piece rock band fronted by Grant Richards' soulful vocals, who released singles and an album on Polygram in 1990, and toured with Black Crowes, Texas and Gun as well as in their own right. This is an unreleased track destined for their second album which wasn't to be. Drummer Richard Hynd joined Texas, Scott Fraser toured with Deacon Blue and works with Craig Armstrong on a project called Winona and soundtrack work. Kenny Paterson continued at Park Lane, sowing the seeds for this album.

In fact, his first childhood memory was his father hooking up the family radio to a pickup truck battery and tuning in the Grand Ole Opry. Jennings became a country music DJ but got fired for mixing in songs by Chuck Berry and Little Richard! In 1958, Buddy Holly arranged Jennings' first recording session and hired him to play bass. Jennings gave up his seat on the plane that crashed in 1959, killing Holly, Ritchie Valens and The Big Bopper.

BrainDead (2021): "You Might Think" by The Cars is the Space Bugs' theme. Slow the song down by 16x, and it matches the sound of background radiation from the Draco constellation.

Starting in 1983, Michael Rooney's garage-rock band had a good number of issues on the French New Rose label as well as other labels. They would wind down in the 1990's but reformed in 1997 and continue today.

Though it should be obvious, each of the Rock Band games has one of the songs from the game play during the opening cutscene from each iteration. The original Rock Band has "Highway Star" by Deep Purple, Rock Band 2 has a rerecording of "Hello There" by Cheap Trick, and Rock Band 3 has "Break On Through (To the Other Side)" by The Doors. In addition, both Green Day Rock Band and The Beatles Rock Band have mashups of several songs by each respective band, and Lego Rock Band uses "Grace" by Super Grass.

Park Lane Archives is a compilation CD that was released back in 2009. It consists of songs, mostly in demo or unreleased form, recorded at Park Lane Studios which are located on the south side of Glasgow. The CD comes with a 16-page booklet in which a number of the musicians explain why the studios, which from the outside really look nothing special, were an essential element in helping to create a music scene in and around the 80s and 90s. There's also wonderful contributions from those who worked at the studios, whether on the management side or as part of the incredibly gifted recording/engineering staff.

God Help The Girl

He enjoys working with left-field directors and has also scored Spike Jonze's films. Among his best known film scores are And the Band Played On (1993), Conspiracy Theory (1997), Hamlet (2000), The Spanish Prisoner (1997), Before the Devil Knows You're Dead (2007), In Bruges (2008) and Twilight (2008).

As with just about every single the band released around that period in time, there was an unusual choice of song for a cover version. In this case it was Mothers which was originally by Jean Paul Sartre Experience, a rather obscure (to most folk) new wave band from New Zealand.

We laugh, but that is very much the vibe she gives off in person. I know folks on LSA like to clown her, but when you see how men AND women react to her in real life, it is rather impressive. And you can tell she knows exactly what she's doing.

The song was clearly meant to be an updated take on his famous WWF theme, Real American. Though nowhere near as iconic as that Rick Derringer-penned track, but I'd argue that it's the better of the two in terms of pure rock-out fun.

The rest, as they say, is history. Brooks had the first country album to debut at the top of the pop charts. My wife, who happens to be a country music singer, dragged me kicking and screaming to one of his concerts, and I have to admit that it was a great show.
