We also discovered an interactive Web Shell that may be related to the mining operators.

With the Graphics Designer, the WinCC Configuration Studio is the central development platform for WinCC applications. By using the integrated scripting and programming interfaces, it is possible to automate many engineering processes and to integrate individual runtime functionalities. Additional function extensions make it possible to process mass data very fast and to integrate standardized application modules in any part of your application. The optimization of the interaction between the Configuration Studio and the Graphics Designer enables you to develop your applications faster. As a result, you can increase the engineering efficiency and therefore gain a shorter time-to-market.
